[ARTHUR MIDDLETON TO LYMAN HALL]

Addressed: His Excellency
Lyman Hall Esquire
Augusta, Georgia
by Mr Melvin.

Cedar Grove March 1, 1783.

Sir,

By desire of Mr. Melvin I take the Liberty of troubling your Excellency with the relation of a Circumstance which respects him & myself—soon after my return home, I met upon the road & took possession of a Negro fellow who is my property & had been carried off by the Enemy—Mr Melvin laid claim to him alledging he had purchased him in Georgia where he was condemned & sold under the assumed name of Ben as part of the Cargo of a prize vessel captured by the Brig Edward owned by Mr. Ogden of No. Carolina & commanded by Capn. Samuel Gooderd. Mr. Melvin farther alledges that the Negro was known to be my property at the time of Sale & that he bid for him with Intention of offering him to me—I cannot help observing that I never should have expected such unkind usage from a Court of Admirality in Georgia, being conscious of having endeavoured to conduct myself both in private & public Life in such way as to merit Milder treatment—I have refused to deliver up the Negro to Mr. Melvin, & shall keep possession of him knowing that there is in my favour a Clause of an Ordinance of Congress passed in December 1781 by which the recaptor is only entitled to a "reasonable Salvage not exceeding 1/4 of the value"—which Salvage I shall willingly pay when it is properly demanded—Mr Melvin says he gave £50 sterling for the fellow & I imagin his desire of my acquainting your Excellency with the facts arise from an Expectation of your Interference & good Office in getting the money refunded; to effect which I doubt not you will be stimulated by that Love of Equity Justice and good Government which I have long known you to possess.

[2] This letter refers to what is said to have been the very last encounter in America between the British and American forces during the Revolutionary War in which blood was shed. An expedition was planned by Kosciuszko to surprise a party of wood-cutters on James Island about a month before the evacuation of Charleston on December 14, 1782. It was a failure, the enemy being found ready for them, and the gallant Captain Wililam Wilmot of the Maryland line was killed and Lieut. Moore referred to in the letter, also of the same line, was mortally wounded dying after the evacuation of the city. (Garden's Anecdotes, Vol. 1, page 91).

Wishing you health and an easy Seat

I have the honour to be Your Excellency's Obedient and very humble Servant
Arthur Middleton.[3]

[HERIOT AND TUCKER TO JOHN RUTLEDGE]

George Town 30th January 1795

Sir

We have just received your's of the 23 Inst. and agreeably to your request have inclosed an affadavit setting forth the Loss of the Public Stores in the Department of the Commissary General taken by the British Forces in this place and the Vicinity in the year 1780.

Annexed to the Affadavit are the kinds, quantity and Value of the Property to the best of our Judgement, any other information you may wish to have we shall be very ready to give it.

The vessels that were Captured were Loaded with Provisions in order to send round to Charleston but being detained at this Bar for some time by adverse Winds it was Judged expedient to send them up the Waccamaw as high as they could possibly go for safety.

[3] Arthur Middleton, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence was elected a delegate to the Continental Congress by the Jacksonborough Assembly which met in January, 1782. Lyman Hall was Governor of Georgia for one term from 1783. Like Middleton he was one of the "signers."

Mr. Cogdell is in the Country at present When he comes to Town we shall speak to him on the subject & make no doubt but he will do what you request.

We remain very respectfully Sir

Your very Hble Serv^{ts}.

[GEORGE WASHINGTON TO GOV. EDWARD RUTLEDGE]

Addressed: His Excellency
Governor Rutledge
Charleston
G^{o}. Washington
Stamped, Alex. Va. Sep. 9.
Marked Free.

Mount Vernon Sepr. 9th: 1799.

My dear Sir,

Brigadier General Washington called upon me on Saturday night and went off again on Sunday Morning.—His anxiety to get to Carolina as soon as possible (having been detained to the Eastward longer than he expected) prevented his passing more time with me.—He gave me the model of the Cannon which you was so good as to present to me, and by him I wrote a hasty line to you acknowledging the receipt of it &c.

This morning I had the pleasure to receive, under a blank cover from the War office, your obliging favour of the 3^{d}. of Augt and a letter addressed to Brigad^{r}. General Washington, which I shall forward so as to get to his hands before he leaves this state.

Permit me, my dear Sir, to repeat my thanks for the model of the Cannon, and to assure you of my grateful acknowledgements for the kind and friendly sentiments contained in your letter.—No man can wish more sincerely than I do, that we may not be drawn into the conflict in which the European powers are now involved; but, at the same time, no one is more anxious that we should make every possible preparation to meet such an event, if it should be unavoidable.

In order to this, we should embrace the present moment to make our Establishments as respectable as circumstances will permit, and neglect no opportunity of introducing into them every improvement in the Military Art that can be useful, let it come from what quarter so ever it may.

I am sorry to inform you that Mrs. Washington has been confined by a fever for some days past. She seems at present to be a little better;—but is still very low. She is thankful for Mrs Rutledge's kind regards and most Sincerely reciprocates them, in which she is joined by—My dear Sir,

Your affect. friend and
Obedient Servant
Go: Washington[4]

His Excellency
Governor Rutledge

[4] As General Washington died on December 14, 1799 this letter was among the last which he wrote. It is written in his well known handwriting, and with as much care as though he had been a man of leisure, and not in chief command of the armies of the United States when War with France seemed nearly upon us. The sentiments as to what is now called "preparedness" sound very modern. The "General Washington" mentioned in the letter was the Colonel Washington of the Revolution, who had married and remained in South Carolina after the War.

Joseph Seabrook, Senr. of Edisto Island. (Joseph 2. Robert 1.). Died intestate; administration to Isaac Seabrook 30th. April, 1790.[1] With John Seabrook and others, he was a commissioner for the building a chapel of ease on Edisto Island in 1770; was a Justice of the Peace, Charlestown, in 1776;[2] was on the Confiscation list in 1783, to be amerced, but was favorably reported upon. June 9th, 1788[3] he gave to his son Isaac, 226 acres "where I now live" on Edisto, called Pine Barren; same date gave son Gabriel 220 acres on Edisto called Hill tract. July 7, 1789[4] he gave son Thomas 300 acres "Where I now live" on Edisto, east on "my son Isaac," south on late Benjamin Seabrook and James Crawford, west by Christopher Jenkins, north by creek. Sept. 22, 1789,[5] he gave grandson Joseph Smelie Seabrook, of Wadmalaw Island, four negroes; Nov. 28, 1789,[6] gave son Joseph Seabrook, Jr., seventeen negroes, and gave his daughter Mary Ann Whaley, thirteen negroes 29th March, 1789.[7]

There is some evidence this Joseph Seabrook Senr., (8) married Elizabeth Bailey, but this has not been proved.

Benjamin Seabrook (Joseph 2. Robert 1), of Edisto Island, died about 1780 leaving a will which is missing. As we said before, owing to the lack of wills, it is hard to distinguish between this Benjamin, and Benjamin of St. Paul's parish (see page 18).

Benjamin (9) and his brother Robert Seabrook, purchased May 14, 1751, of John Cattell 420 acres on Edisto Island.[8] March 1st, 1755,[9] Samuel Eaton of Edisto, gives a bond to Benjamin Seabrook. Samuel Eaton, of Edisto Island makes his will 16 March 1757,[10] making John Calder, Joshua Eaton Benjamin Seabrook his executors; July 5, 1763, "Kannaway" Eaton gives receipt to Benj. Seabrook for his share of his father Samuel Eaton's estate.[11] In the S. C. Gazette for August 3, 1761, Benjamin Seabrook of Edisto Island, advertises for two runaway negroes, formerly the property of Mr. Benjamin Cattell. John May of Edisto Island made his will 3. Sept. 1765,[12] and mentions his Son William May, under 21; Mother Martha May, sister Martha Seabrook, and Brother-in-Law Benjamin Seabrook as sole executor; proved 5. Oct. 1765, Benjamin Seabrook qualified. From the above will, it appears that Benjamin Seabrook married Martha May; later, May 1, 1767, he married Sarah Calder of Edisto Island,[13] who seems to have been the widow of John Calder, (d. 1766), and according to family tradition was born a Baynard.

She died before 6 Ap. 1810, when Joseph Baynard Seabrook was granted administration.

Sept. 22, 1768, Kannaway Norton of Edisto, planter, grandson of George Norton of same place, with Ann his wife, sells to Benjamin Seabrook of same place, planter, 214 acres on Edisto, N. W. on Abraham Bush, S. W. on Robert Seabrook, N. E. on Andrew Townsend S. on creek.[14] Oct. 29, 1768,[15] Benj. Seabrook purchased of Isaac Rippon and Joanna, his wife, two tracts on Edisto, one of 234 acres and one of 216 acres, north and west on creek, east on Joseph Seabrook, south on John Beckett.

On 28th June, 1775,[16] Benjamin Seabrook of Edisto Is., St John's Colleton, planter, gives to his son-in-law, Ralph Bailey, six negroes; purchased of Edward Fisher & Co. June 17, 1774. Just how Ralph Bailey was his son-in-law does not appear; Seabrook may have married a widow Bailey, or Ralph Bailey's first wife may have been a Seabrook, his known wife was Mary Splatt, and among his executors are "friends" Benjamin Seabrook and Thomas B. Seabrook, sons of the above Benjamin.

Benjamin Seabrook had issue, probably by his first wife Martha May:

i. Martha Seabrook, second wife of Daniel Jenkins, married February, 1781;[17] she died intestate before 31 March 1802;[18] issue, Benjamin Whitmarsh Jenkins, Richard Jenkins Thomas Seabrook Jenkins,[19] Amarinthia, Martha Seabrook, Sarah, Joseph Jenkins and Mary (d. 1784).

Married (2) Elizabeth Emma Edings (1783–1856) daughter of Joseph Edings and had issue.

There is a sketch of the life of William Seabrook in the Southern Agriculturist for February, 1837, which gives some interesting details concerning him. From this sketch we gather that he was an able man of fine character, who overcame by his own exertions the financial and educational disadvantages of his youth, which were some what the result of the Revolutionary War. At seventeen he took charge of his own and his mother's estates, and managed them so well that they improved greatly. He was one of the first to cultivate successfully sea-island, or black seed cotton, said to have been introduced into Georgia in 1785, by Josiah Tatnal, who received from his father, then Surveyor-General of the Bahamas, a handful of this seed. Mr. Seabrook was among the first to test salt-mud as a fertilizer for cotton; he also established a steamboat line between Charleston and Savannah, calling at the intermediate Islands; he was for many years an elder of the Presbyterian Church of Edisto, and gave liberally to educational and religious institutions; he left at his death, five thousand dollars to be used towards establishing a school in the Parish of St. Johns Colleton, and five thousand dollars to the Presbyterian Church on Edisto. Mr. Seabrook owned several large plantations; among them Seabrooks, (formerly Simmons' Island, "White Point" on Slann's Island, lands on Johns Island, Wadmalaw Island, Edisto Island, and Hilton Head. He built several handsome houses, one of which he speaks of in his will as his "Mansion house." He had given his older children handsome estates and large sums of money as they reached their majority, and his inventory shows his personal property to have been valued at $376,916.60, a large sum for those days.

William Seabrook and his first wife Mary Ann Mikell had issue:

i. William Seabrook who married Martha Washington Edings, (a sister to his father's second wife) and had: (1) Wm. Edings Seabrook who married 28 Feb. 1856 Esther Marion, daughter of Edward Mitchell, issue. (2) John Edward Seabrook, married Elizabeth Whaley, issue. (3) Josephine E. The Court of Inquiry ordered to sit this Morning have reported that after maturely considering the Evidence & facts relative to the conduct of L^{t}. Col^{o}. Scott, they are of Opinion that Col^{o}. Scott, acted imprudently in leaving the reg^{t}. without his Com^{g}. Officer's Permission but do not think him subject to a Court Martial

For fatigue to be warned tonight & to march tomorrow Morning at Reveille beating under the Command of Capt. DeTreville two Cap^{ts}. 4 Subs. 4 Serj^{ts}. & 80 Rank & file.

2^{d}. Parole. C. S.

F. O. for tomorrow.	Col^{o}. Thompson.
B. M.	Capt. McIntosh

For Command to be paraded at 4 oClock 2 Capt^{s} 4 Subs. 6 Serj^{ts}. & — Rank & file, they are to relieve the covering party under L^{t}. Col^{o}. Henderson.—L^{t}. Col^{o}. Hopkins is to have the above Command.

The Court Martial of which L^{t}. Col^{o}. Scott was Pres.^{t} have reported Capt. Mitchell of the Artillery charged 1st. With being absent from his alarm post on the Night of the 11th. August.

2ly. for beating & abusing a Matross one Gavin Ervin in Violation of a standing Regimental Order.

3dly. for behaving with Contempt & Disrespect to Colo. Beekman of that Corps.

4thly. For treating Colo. Beekman (in the Character of Comg. Officer at the time when the whole Line was turn'd out & the Camp in an actual State of Alarm) with abusive & scurrilous Language.

5thly. For behaving in a manner unbecoming an Officer & a Gentleman.

On the first Charge the Court was of Opinion that Capt. Mitchell was absent from his alarm Post on the Night of the 11th. Augt. 1779, as it was conceived that it was his Duty to have been in the Park at the time of the Alarm notwithstanding no particular Post or Division had been assigned him; but as he was absent a very short time and had taken every Precaution necessary to receive the earliest Intelligence of an Alarm, they think the Charge rather frivolous. On the Second that the Court could not take Cognizance of it, as a punishment was annexed to a breach of that Order. On the 3d. 4th. & 5th. Charges that they could not be separately determined. But are of Opinion that Capt. Mitchell did treat Colo. Beekman the Comg. Officer with abusive & scurrilous Language at the time when the whole Line was turn'd out & the Camp in an actual State of Alarm—They therefore sentence that Capt. Mitchell should be reprimanded in the presence of the Officers of the Artillery.

It gives the Genl. pain that he is under the necessity of disapproving the Sentence of the Court, but is constrained to do it as he thinks it totally inadequate to the Offence and that to approve it would be subversive of Order & Discipline in the Army.

In Case of a Repulse after having taken the Spring Hill Redoubt, the Troops will retreat to & rally in the Rear of that Redoubt, if it cannot be effected that way it must be attempted by the same Rout at which they entered—The second place of rallying (or the first if the Redoubt should not be carried) will be at the Jews Burying Ground where the reserve will be placed—if these two Halts should not be effectual they will retire towards Camp.

from the Island of Rattan [sic], having been advised to leave his native Country on account of a deep Consumption which threatened his Life, he embarked for Jamaica, and was in his Voyage thither taken by a French Pirate and carried into Rattan where he lived six Weeks entirely upon Turtle, to which he ever ascribed the Cure of his Disorder. His greatest Foible was Credulity, believing the most improbable Stories even of his most intimate Friends, and though told by persons he scarcely knew. For many years past he looked upon himself as the Champion of the Protestant Religion on this side of the Atlantick, seriously believing that the Papists, particularly the Jesuits were continually plotting his Destruction, and impressed with this Belief he never went abroad without Pocket Pistols or other private Arms. In this Weakness, however, he was not singular; John Dennis the Poet and Critick and many others, might be adduced as Examples. He lived and died a Batchelor, was remarkably abstemious, and enjoyed the Use of all his Senses to the latest Period, particularly his Sight, being able to read the smallest Print without Spectacles. His remains, attended by many respectable Inhabitants, were decently interred in St. Michael's Church yard, on which Occasion it was remarked that six old Bachelors as Pall-Bearers could not be found in the whole Town.
